The LSP Streaker is airbike sold on worlds across the Imperium and beyond. It is often seen as an expensive toy for the rich. It is capable of very high speeds that require its driver (and possible passenger) to have personal protection against cold and possible thin air (rebreather). Often, these are not used to their extremes, but the give the owners bragging rights about what they could do. Since most people don't have the skill to fly at those extremes and the basic autopilot is not really up to the task, most of these bikes are not used to their full potential. At least, not for long.
